Housing gap to rise to two cities size of Birmingham by 2021

Woeful levels of house building have left the country facing a housing gap of 886,000 homes by 2021.

New research, undertaken by the Association for Consultancy and Engineering, highlights for the first time the true extent to which the number of households across the country exceeds the number of homes.

The ACE has called for urgent housing building reforms warning that tinkering with the demand side of the industry will not tackle
